

NO SERIOUS STRUCTURAL CHANGES AT MANSION

Historic Building to Be Little Altered in Appearance, Says Architect Bryant.

CRITICISMS NOT JUSTIFIED

Based on Plans Prepared Some Time Ago and Abandoned—New Heating Plant to Be Installed and Plumbing Overhauled.

Adverse criticisms of the improvements planned for the Executive Mansion are based upon false assumptions, according to Charles K. Bryant, the architect who designed the scheme of repairs to be made on the old mansion, at a cost of $150,000.

The objections stated by the critics, said Mr. Bryant yesterday, "would be well taken, if they were not absolutely groundless. It is clearly apparent that those who have found fault with the proposed rehabilitation of the building draw their conclusions from a set of plans prepared some time ago and abandoned."

The principal objection stated has reference to alterations to be made on the first floor of the Governor's Mansion. As a matter of fact, the alterations are practically no alterations. The appearance of the mansion, interior and exterior, will be so little changed when the repairs are completed that not one person in a hundred who has made frequent visits to the mansion will observe anything more than that the building has been freshly painted outside. The interior, newly papered and the woodwork polished.

ONLY SLIGHT CHANGE

The only detail of alteration on the first floor is the moving forward a few feet of the stairs. That was done to provide two private halls on the second floor. The view is not obstructed in the hallway, as has been alleged. If the old set of plans had been accepted, that objection to might have been in order. For the second story of the mansion some changes have been made, in order to give the Governor more commodious bedrooms and other desired comforts and conveniences. The improvement is to be overhauled, so that it may be made habitable, and not resemble a junkroom. The old heating system will be replaced by a new heating system installed, which will be connected with the modern system by which the Capitol and State Library buildings are heated. The mansion is now heated by an independent system. The change is in the interest of health, sanitation and economy.

Mr. Bryant said the work of overhauling the building will be begun as soon as practicable after the furniture and other household effects of Governor Sweeney are removed to the temporary gubernatorial residence at 229 Franklin Street. The work will begin probably this week.

REGULAR CLASSES START AT MCGUIRE'S SCHOOL

Classical Institution Enters Upon Fifth Year in New Quarters With Enrollment of 125.

Regular classes will start tomorrow morning at McGuire's University School, which opened for matriculation and assignment of students on Thursday. The enrollment for the session is 125, which is the largest in the history of the school.

The new session marks the fifth year of McGuire's and in celebration of its half century of usefulness, an entirely new building and plant have been provided for matriculation. The building is located on a large plot of ground, directly opposite the State Capitol, and in front of the large municipal playground.

In addition to its facilities for athletics, the school now has one of the most complete educational plants in the city. The building is equipped with modern school furniture, and has modern ventilation and heating systems. John P. McGuire, who succeeded his father in the management of the school, will have as his corps of assistants, W. W. Boswell, R. E. A. Wells and J. P. Williams, all University of Virginia graduates. The lower school will be in charge of women instructors, as usual.

Hearing on Express Rates. Representatives of the express companies doing business in Virginia are scheduled for a hearing before the State Corporation Commission next Wednesday. The Interstate Commerce Commission recently revised its rates. In some instances these revised rates are at variance with the rates prescribed by the State Commission. It is desired to make the schedules conform. The hearing will be public and a general invitation is extended by the commissioners to all business organizations and individuals interested to attend this hearing.

HE REDUCED 57 POUNDS

New Method of Flesh Reduction Proves Astonishingly Successful.

Johnstown, Pa., September 19.—Investigation has fully established that Hon. H. T. Stettin, of this city, has reduced 57 pounds in an incredibly short time by wearing a simple, invisible device, weighing less than an ounce. This, when worn as directed, acts as an infallible reducer, dispensing entirely with dieting, medicines and exercises. Many prominent men and women have adopted this means of reducing flesh, and it is stated by the inventor, Prof. A. J. Burns, of No. 17 W. 18th St., New York, is sending these outfits on free trial to all who write him.—Advertisement.

GRENFELL AMONG DEAD

LONDON, September 19 (16 P. M.).—Captain H. N. Grenfell, the well-known polo player of the Buckingham Yeomanry, attached to North Lancashire, was among the officers killed in action in France. His name appears in the list under date of September 16, issued by the War Office to-day.

The list also contained the names of Captain Lord Guernsey, of the Irish Guards, and Captain Lord A. V. Hay, also of the Irish Guards. Colonel R. F. Ballou, of the general staff, died of wounds.

The names are given of twenty of those killed and forty wounded, one who died of wounds and one missing. Captain H. N. Grenfell and his brother, Captain Francis Grenfell, both of the North Lancashire, were members of the British polo team that was to have played the United States team for the International polo cup in 1915. An accident to Captain Francis Grenfell, however, caused postponement of the international match.

Later, members of the Renfrew team, the brothers played that year in the tournament at the Royal Polo Club, and it was H. N. Grenfell's leading play that won the final game of the tournament, in which he scored seven of the eight goals made by the English team.

Colonel Frank Bailey, former Ballou was the son of Colonel R. F. Ballou, C. K. B., and had served in India and in South Africa. Captain Henke Grenfell, Finch, Lord Guernsey, was the eldest son of the Earl of Alford.

VIRGINIA'S BUILDING NOW STANDS COMPLETED

Architect for State Notified That Structure Is Ready for Panama-Pacific Exposition.

REPLICA OF MOUNT VERNON

Trees and Shrubbery Will Be Taken From Banks of Potomac to Reproduce Original Landscape of Washington's Home at San Francisco.

First news of the completion of the Virginia building, Mount Vernon, on the grounds of the Panama-Pacific Exposition, San Francisco, was received yesterday morning by Charles K. Bryant, the architect who designed the reproduction of the home of George Washington for the commission which was appointed by the General Assembly to provide the Commonwealth's exhibit at the big world's fair.

The telegraphic communication came from D. A. Clark, superintendent of construction employed by the commission to supervise the actual building operations. It was a brief and formal notification to the effect that "the Virginia building now stands completed and only the hardware remains to be installed."

WORK COMPLETED IN SEVENTY-NINE DAYS

When the construction contract was awarded, the contractor was given 150 days to complete the work. Fortune favored the builders, however, and there was practically no interruption to the operations. In consequence, the work of construction was completed in seventy-nine days.

The "hardware," which is yet to be placed in the building, embraces mechanical fixtures to be used in lighting and ventilation. This equipment can be installed in a few days. The reproduction of Mount Vernon will not be perfect, however, until its landscape setting has been completed. Architect Bryant, with supervised execution of the work himself, also plans include a stretch of landscape, an exact reproduction of the landscape around the original Mount Vernon. To obtain the effects desired, trees and shrubbery are to be taken from Mount Vernon's grounds and transplanted. These arboreal environments will be as near a verisimilitude of the original landscape as it is possible to contrive. Architect Bryant will direct the laying out of the counterfeited landscape when he goes to San Francisco in October. The formal delivery of the Virginia building in connection with the commission is scheduled for October 15.

About the same date Architect Bryant, as the general agent of the South Carolina Commission to the Panama-Pacific Exposition, will accept the South Carolina building from the contractors. The building is a duplicate of the clubhouse of the famous South Carolina Game Wren Club. The plans for the building were completed by Mr. Bryant last week, and he left for Columbia, S. C., last night, where he will meet the commission and present his designs for approval before proceeding with the award of the construction contract. He will return to Richmond on next Wednesday night.

JUSTICE JOHN REACHES THREESCORE AND TEN

Police Court Caut Will Celebrate His Seventieth Birthday To-Day at Home.

BEEN ON BENCH FOR 27 YEARS

"Be Temperate in All Things" Is His Secret for Longevity—Mrs. Crutchfield Prepares Mammoth Cake With Requisite Candles.

JUSTICE JOHN J. CRUTCHFIELD.

Justice John Jeter Crutchfield, senior representative of the bench in Richmond, will to-day celebrate his seventieth birthday. Though he has reached the allotted time of threescore years and ten, the one John is good for another score of years, for his heart is light and his eyes are undimmed, and his thoughts are not always fixed upon the past.

The genial and kindly magistrate has presided over the destinies of his constituents ordinary and extraordinary for twenty-seven years, and there is no one to say that he has not held the scales fairly, and that he has not noted out justice with an impartial mind. He is known in the four quarters of the United States, and press notices have been given to his fame from the Atlantic seaboard to the Barbary coast.

His decisions, carried before the highest court, are perhaps the only justice in Virginia whose decisions have been carried before the United States Supreme Court and been upheld by that august tribunal. So that it is not without some just pride that the Crutchfield clan will gather with its head to-day for a simple and quiet observance of the anniversary of his nativity. Mrs. Crutchfield, it is said, has prepared a tremendous birthday cake, surrounded with seventy candles, and every one who calls to extend his good wishes for many happy returns of the day will take a big cake to fill the need.

If one should ask Justice Crutchfield the secret of his longevity and his remarkably good health, he will answer as did the ancient sage, "be temperate in all things." That more than anything else is Justice Crutchfield's public secret. Temperate in mind as well as in body, he has lived through seventy years of vicissitudes and successes, bearing the one with fortitude and the other with humility, and now he can look back with small regret and forward with the trust of one who has tried to keep the faith. And it is a significant fact that among his best friends are numbered the negro people, who have in earlier times remembered him with permanent tokens of their esteem. There will be hundreds who will wish him many happy returns of the day.

Issue a letter to their customers about State-wide Prohibition

The voters of Virginia are called upon to decide at the ballot-box September 22nd the question of surrendering our long tried and thoroughly satisfactory system of local option and adopting in its place State-wide Prohibition, a regulation that has not been satisfactory in any state that has tried it.

Before our customers and the general public vote on the issue, we wish to call their attention to one phase of the proposed State-wide prohibition law that has probably escaped their attention. At any rate, we wish to acquaint them with the fact that if State-wide prohibition is adopted for Virginia that we can no longer fill orders for wine and liquors from our customers.

The State-wide law that the prohibitionists propose to enact for Virginia makes it unlawful for any person or firm to sell wine, spirits or beer in the State. While the law permits the manufacture of wines and beers in Virginia must be sold in some other State; they cannot be lawfully sold in Virginia.

As our customers are aware, we carry, in connection with our family grocery business, a stock of wines and liquors which we sell as required for home consumption. We supply a large amount of Porter, Stout, Ale, Malt Extract, etc.; wines for all culinary purposes, for sacramental uses, for medicinal purposes as well. We also supply liquor to those who wish to keep a small supply in their homes. We sell no liquors to be drunk on the premises.

Now, if State-wide prohibition is adopted in Virginia we will be compelled to discontinue this line of our business. You know how such discontinuance would affect you and your neighbors. We could not fill an order even for wine from any of you for any purpose, much less orders for the stronger beverages.

Our purpose in writing this card is to acquaint you with the facts already stated—that if State-wide prohibition is adopted next Tuesday you will be compelled to send your orders outside of Virginia for wines and liquors and take chances on what you get in return for your money. If you feel about the matter as we do, we most respectfully, but strongly, urge you to go to the polls Tuesday, September 22d, and vote against State-wide prohibition.

Yours very truly and respectfully,

R. L. CHRISTIAN & CO., HERMAN SCHMIDT, GEO. McD. BLAKE & CO.
